Anabel's of Scottsdale provides motel-style and self-contained accommodation in Scottsdale, northern Tasmania.

The National Trust classified home overlooks a delightful old-world garden and the units have been built in Federation style.

Some units provide cooking facilities and all are fully equipped with modern comforts. Accommodation options are available for individual travellers and couples through to units with capacity for up to four guests.

From the shady verandahs you can enjoy springtime rhododendrons and leafy gardens, also classified by the National Trust.

Anabel's is centrally located in Scottsdale, an ideal centre for touring the delights of the north east.

You can visit the Bridestowe Estate Lavender Farm, one of the world's largest lavender farms. Take a guided tour in December or January during flowering or watch an informative video about the farm if you are visiting outside these months.

Also nearby is the Derby Tin Mine Centre, with its mining museum and shanty town to explore. If you enjoy the outdoors, plan a walk in the Mount William National Park or visit the huge dunes in the St Helens Reserve.

Anabel's of Scottsdale is approximately one hours' drive (63 kilometres/39 miles) from Launceston.
